

Dr. Olga R. Chiriac is a social scientist and professor.

Her work is situated @ the intersection of psychology and security studies (decision-making and strategic culture) with a special interest in military applications of cognitive sciences and political warfare.

Dr. Chiriac is the Project Europe Head of Engagement with the Irregular Warfare Initiative of the Modern War Institute, at West Point and Visiting Professor at the University of Bucharest where she leads engagement for the Black Sea Program.

She is affiliated as an Associated Researcher with the Joint Special Operations University in Tampa, Florida and the Economic Conflict & Competition Research Group (ECCRG) at Kings College.

Prior to this, Dr. Chiriac was selected a Title VIII US State Department Research Fellow and she worked as an Associated Researcher at the Center for Strategic Studies, Bucharest.

Olga holds a PhD in Political Science, an MA in War Studies, as well as a BS in Finance and Behavioral Economics. She is alum of the Arizona Legislative and Government Internship Program (Law Enforcement Agency).

Research Interests: decision-making, strategic culture, socio-cultural elements of policy making, maritime strategy.